About this journal

INTERVENTION, The International Journal of Mental Health, Psychosocial Work and Counselling in Areas of Armed Conflict is a multi-disciplinary journal. It is meant for mental health workers such as psychiatrists, psychotherapists and psychiatric nurses, and also for counsellors, psychosocial workers and community workers, staff members of NGO's developing mental health or psychosocial projects, and international experts in the field.

The purpose of the journal is to make existing knowledge of mental health, psychosocial work and counselling in areas of armed conflict explicit and accessible to interested parties in areas of armed conflict and elsewhere. The journal will publish articles that are not only relevant for professionals working in areas of armed conflict, but also for those working with refugees from areas of armed conflict throughout the world.

The journal publishes articles based on empirical research and practical experience, and literature reviews. Articles may also be abridged and adapted versions of material published in specialised handbooks. In addition, the journal welcomes descriptions and evaluations of current projects in the fields of community mental health, counselling or psychosocial work, including training approaches for local professionals. Descriptions of individual cases that are illustrative in some way of a more general problem and reviews of relevant books are also welcome.

The initiative to start this Journal was taken by 'Shanthiham' (House of Peace), a counselling centre located in Jaffna, Sri Lanka. INTERVENTION, The International Journal of Mental Health, Psychosocial Work and Counselling in Areas of Armed Conflict is published by Intervention Foundation under auspices of War Trauma Foundation in close collaboration with IRCT, International Rehabilitation Council for Torture Victims. This document has been produced with the financial assistance of the European Community.
